Identity in Music

Everyone's experience with music is different. Around the world, people define themselves by their musical identity. This could be an instrument that they play, their favourite artist, or even the music that their families play or sing. This term we will be exploring the concept of identity by looking at your musical background, the music that has been created in our local area, and then different musical styles from around the world. You will learn how to understand music through the musical elements, and develop your practical performance skills in a range of different performance settings and groups.

TUDOR HABITS

You will develop self-regulation through determined practice, as well as learning to focus on the process of music, rather than the result.
