

LEARNING JOURNEY

German

Kunst und Architektur (Art and architecture)

Year 12 Spring 2

This is the first of the 'A' level topics which is very different from anything that you have studied previously. There are no direct links to the GCSE course, however, much of the language and structures that you have learnt will be transferrable to this topic. For example, the use of language to express and justify opinions, as well as subordinate clauses, comparatives and superlatives, are all aspects of grammar that you have covered lower down the school, which you will be able to utilise within this unit of work. This topic will encourage you to consider not only your own viewpoints on works of art and architecture, but also how they influence our daily lives. You will also examine developments in art and architecture from past to present and even into the future. This will enable you to better understand cultural differences, as the way in which art and architecture evolve is a direct reflection of the contemporary society that they serve.

Cultural opportunities: developing understanding of German-speaking artists, architects and artistic movements that have influenced our past, present and future.

TUDOR HABITS: This is a challenging topic for many students due to the more abstract nature of the content. Therefore, you will need to be gritty in your approach to this topic and proactive in overcoming any obstacles to your understanding.
